Welcome!

An urban lifestyle with small-town friendliness.

Grab a bite in Bloomfield, Pittsburgh's Little Italy. People-watch and brush up on your "Pittsburghese" in the Strip District (yes, we've got our own lingo!). Walk or bike along riverfront trails located right in the city. Pittsburgh's charming neighborhoods dot a unique topography of rivers and hillsides with amazing cultural and recreational destinations throughout.

Enjoy the view

A picturesque campus in a city of opportunity.

Duquesne's park-like, 50-acre campus sits atop a hill overlooking downtown Pittsburgh's stunning glass and steel skyline. Get comfortable in one of our many outdoor study spots as you take in the view: a growing hub for technology, health care, financial services and startups. Hundreds of great employers will be eager for the fresh thinking you'll offer as a Duquesne graduate—and many are right down the street.

Join our COMMUNITY

Whether you live on campus, commute or study entirely online, you'll enjoy what it means to be a part of the Duquesne family.

Call campus your home.

Located just steps away from classes, apartment-style Brottier Hall or suite-style accommodations at Des Places, our newest facility, provide opportunities for graduate students to live on campus. Vickroy Hall and St. Martin's also offers suites and have a kitchen for residents to use.

 Visit duq.edu/residence-life and duq.edu/graduate-living for more information on these opportunities as space is limited. Or contact: orl@duq.edu or 412.396.6655.

Exploration made easy: transportation and parking

Buses and light rail trains run from neighborhoods to downtown Pittsburgh and Duquesne's campus, making it a breeze to explore the city and surrounding neighborhoods. Duquesne also operates a shuttle bus to the popular South Side neighborhood, home to many of our students, nightlife, restaurants and shops.

Thanks to a unique partnership with the Pittsburgh Regional Transit Authority, discounted bus rides are available to all students who enroll in Duquesne University's new UPass program. Learn more at duq.edu/upass.

Want to get away for a weekend or visit family for holiday break? Pittsburgh International Airport is about 20 miles from Duquesne, accessible by bus and car.

BREAKING GROUND TO BREAK BARRIERS IN HEALTHCARE.

Duquesne University continues to be dedicated to building a better world. We aspire for our proposed College of Osteopathic Medicine to be among the most forward-thinking medical schools in the nation, addressing the two largest problems facing medicine today: a shortage of doctors in primary care disciplines and a system of pervasive disparities in health care, especially in underserved urban and rural communities. Our medical school will position Duquesne as more than just a national leader in medical education—it will build on our long tradition of serving people on the margins and building a world where everyone can prosper.

GROW PROFESSIONALLY.

HEAR FROM RECENT GRADS

School of Law Training ethical, practice-ready lawyers.

“Duquesne provides nationally-ranked programs and clinics, coupled with small class sizes and plenty of opportunities for students to thrive. They have also gone above and beyond in working with me through some unique issues presented by my military service during law school.”

-Devon Schoonover,
Law, '20

School of Health Sciences Make an impact...together.

“My classmates and I really became close. We would share notes, study guides and prepare for tests together. We had each other’s backs, learning together in a really supportive environment. The same teamwork needed in sports was just as important to my classwork.”

-Emma Brinton,
Physician Assistant Studies, '22

School of Pharmacy Provide meaningful care.

“My favorite thing about Duquesne’s pharmacy program is they allow students to serve and interact with the community. The annual health and wellness fair allows students to teach the community about different disease states and offer health services.”

-Shawntel Brown,
Pharmacy, '21

Graduate School of Liberal Arts Communicate clearly. Think critically.

“As a graduate student in the Corporate Communication program, I have the privilege of taking courses that integrate practical marketing experience with a mixture of theoretical courses that focus on developing us into ethical and critically thinking individuals. The practical experience, such as a simulated public relations and marketing consulting project, has provided me unparalleled knowledge to help further prepare me for the marketplace.”

-Emily Suruda,
Corporate Communication, '21

School of Nursing Rigorous programs, outstanding support. Advance your career on your own terms.

“My research interests brought me to Duquesne because I have a social justice and vulnerable population research focus. I like that the online PhD program is asynchronous. You can do the coursework at your pace, along with the residency requirements so that you are able to fit your studies into your life. The faculty at Duquesne University are incredibly supportive of student learning. They are consistently available to students, and they are quick to respond to student needs.”

-Monica Gola, MN, RN, CPMHN(c),
Nursing PhD, '21

Graduate School of Business The business of difference making.

“I went to undergraduate school in a small coal town, so I had never been around like-minded individuals who think progressively about climate change and other sustainability issues until now. I couldn’t be more impressed with my professors and cohort at Duquesne. This program is truly one of the best things to happen to me.”

-Alec Watts,
MBA Sustainable Practices, '20
