

BIOLOGICAL SCIENCES GRADUATE FALL OPEN HOUSE

Friday, December 3rd, 10:00am-3:00pm
201 Mellon Hall, Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, PA 15219

- Learn about the exciting research in the biology department.
 - Meet with biology faculty and graduate students and discuss their research, and the Ph.D. program in general.
 - Find out about the guaranteed stipends and tuition remission, and details of teaching assistantships.
 - Learn how to apply to the program with our online portal.
 - Tour the research and teaching laboratories, and the campus.
- (Duquesne Univ. is an equal opportunity provider.)

Research areas include: cell biology, molecular biology, microbiology, physiology, ecology, evolution, neurobiology, immunology, endocrinology, malaria control, conservation biology, pathology, bioinformatics, environmental biology and pain prevention.

Registration is recommended:

selcer@duq.edu

Kyle W. Selcer, Ph.D.

Director of Graduate Studies

412-396-5967 or BioGradInfo@duq.edu