

Professional Bio Sketch
for
Kathryn Hollywood, PhD

A native, NYCer, Dr. Hollywood received her Ph.D. in Administration and Supervision with a concentration in Church/Organizational Leadership, from the School of Education, Fordham University, New York City. She holds a Specialist degree in Counseling and two Master's degrees (Clinical Psychology and Theology).

Her teaching and administrative career includes K-12 settings and undergraduate and graduate education (St. John's University, City University, Fordham University, Barry University, Nova Southeastern University, and Northcentral University). She has been serving as an adjunct professor at Duquesne University since 2003.

Dr. Hollywood is a Professor of Leadership at Concordia University Chicago, in the College of Innovation and Professional Programs where she oversees graduate programs in Higher Education Leadership, Health Care Leadership, Organizational Leadership as well as the MA in Leadership Studies. She holds doctoral faculty status serving on numerous dissertation committees at CUC. Her publication and presentation centers on coaching, mentoring, and organizational leadership.

Dr. Hollywood has served as a consultant with various school districts and school administrative teams throughout the country as well as diverse corporations and business organizations. She was a national consultant for the Panasonic Foundation.

Dr. Hollywood has serving a six-year term on the editorial managing board of the Journal of Leadership Educators, the journal of the Association of Leadership Educators (www.leadershipeducators.org). She was recently made a board member of the International Mentoring Association (www.mentoringassociation.org)

In her spare time, Dr. Hollywood plays golf (aspires to be on the LPGA Senior Tour), cheers for the New York Yankees and enjoys her 13 yr old rescued Australian Shepherd named Lucy. She currently resides in Prescott, AZ.