Meet Zachary Valkovci

What advice would you give to incoming law students? As incoming law students, I would say that keeping an open mind about your future is the best thing you could do for yourself. Just because you came into law school thinking you'll go into criminal law, doesn't mean you have to go into criminal law! The legal field is far broader than most people realize. If you try your best to expose yourself to several areas of the law, you just might surprise yourself with where you end up.

Undergraduate Institution: Duquesne University

What are your favorite law school class and professor?

Professor Grace Orsatti and her Wills & Healthcare Decisions Clinic has been my absolute favorite course. Professor Orsatti puts so much thought and care into pro bono legal work for the Pittsburgh community. Getting to be a part of that work is an absolute honor. Even outside of her course, Professor Orsatti is an amazing mentor for me, providing thoughtful oversight and advice for my legal career.

What work experiences have you had?

Throughout my undergraduate and law school studies, I have worked with several different areas of the law, including an intellectual property firm in downtown Pittsburgh and with the United States Attorney's Office for the Western District of Pennsylvania. I also completed the Wills & Healthcare Decisions Clinic through Duquesne Kline School of Law. After that, I became a law clerk at a civil litigation firm in downtown Pittsburgh.

Scholarship and Financial Aid

Incoming student merit scholarships are retained each year by maintaining Academic Good Standing. The GPA required to be in Academic Good Standing is a 2.0. After your first year, you can apply for a variety of need-based endowed funds. The Duquesne Kline School of Law does not award conditional scholarships.

Meet Shannen Cloherty

Why did you choose Duquesne Kline School of Law?

I chose Duquesne Kline Law because ultimately I wanted to end up at a law school where I knew I could hit the ground running and aim to make an immediate impact. The proximity to downtown makes it very easy to not only be involved in the law school community, but the Pittsburgh legal community as well. Additionally, the faculty and staff at Duquesne Kline Law truly care about each individual student's experience, and I saw that firsthand during my visit as an admitted student. I am very pleased with my law school decision and look forward to my remaining time at Duquesne Kline Law.

Undergraduate Institution: University of South Carolina

What led you to pursue a joint degree?

During my undergraduate studies, I pursued a degree in Supply Chain and Operations Management with a Data Analytics Concentration. This degree piqued my interest in business, so coming into law school I knew that I wanted to pursue a JD/MBA. I think that it is extremely valuable to be knowledgeable in business transactions, especially when pursuing a career in corporate law. The JD/MBA program at Duquesne is extremely flexible and can suit whatever your individual needs are. I've enjoyed my classes in the business school and look forward to having more MBA classes in the coming semesters.

Meet Andrew Yelanich

What advice would you give to incoming law students? When answering questions in class, be prepared but don't be afraid to be wrong. The professors nurture learning and dialogue, they don't expect perfectly crafted responses.

Undergraduate Institution: University of Pittsburgh

What are your favorite law school class and professor? Civil Procedure with Professor Heppner. The Hypos are life!

Why did you choose Duquesne Kline School of Law? I chose Duquesne Kline Law because of the evening program that lets me work full time during the day while working towards my J.D.

What work experiences have you had? I've worked in the field of education planning / post-secondary education for over five years.

What are your interests outside of law school? I'm a foodie! I can give the best reviews for Korean restaurants in the city.

Loan Deferment

Undergraduate loan deferment or forbearance forms should be given to the Registrar on the first day of classes. The Registrar will complete these forms when classes have begun and you are a matriculated student.

Loan Repayment Assistance Program

The Loan Repayment Assistance Program (LRAP) provides post-graduation assistance with educational loan repayment for graduates working in qualifying positions in the nonprofit or public service sector.

At Duquesne Kline School of Law, the William B. Billock Loan Repayment Program seeks to ease the debt burden incurred by graduates employed at qualifying public interest law entities. Individuals who work as public interest law or government attorneys or staff for tax-exempt organizations, and who earn less than $65,000 per year are eligible to apply for consideration.

Public Service Loan Forgiveness Program

The U.S. Department of Education's post-graduation Public Service Loan Forgiveness (PSLF) Program currently forgives the remaining balance on Direct Loans after borrowers have made 120 qualifying monthly payments under a qualifying repayment plan while working full-time for a qualifying employer.

Law students can learn more about LRAP and PSLF at the loan repayment informational program held each year at Duquesne Kline School of Law.

Meet Jamilah Wesley

Why did you choose Duquesne Kline School of Law? |

I chose Duquesne Kline Law because I wanted to go to school somewhere that felt genuinely supportive and student focused. Duquesne Kline Law has many great opportunities and programs but still feels close knit and very personal. Also, the foundation of the creation of the Law School to help immigrants and working-class people obtain their education is very admirable. Duquesne Kline's Spiritan Tradition drew me in.

Undergraduate Institution: Old Dominion University

What advice would you give to incoming law students?

Focus on your journey and yours only. While it's nice to admire others around you, success looks different for everyone, and everyone's journey to achieve that is unique.

What are your favorite law school class and professor?

My favorite class is Contracts, and my favorite professor is Professor Richard Gaffney. Contracts involves a lot of interpretation which I enjoy. Professor Gaffney is really encouraging and supportive.

What led you to pursue a joint degree?

I chose to pursue my MBA along with my law degree because I want to pursue corporate law and work on client relations and eventually business development. The flexibility and support from the School of Business and Law School has been essential in making my goal possible.

What are your interests outside of law school?

I enjoy traveling, volunteering, and attending concerts whenever I get a chance.

Bar Passage Nationally
preLaw Magazine 2021

Meet Megan Penn

What advice would you give to incoming law students? You miss 100% of the shots you don't take. Never let the belief that you can't do something hold you back from trying. Your own capability might surprise you.

Undergraduate Institution: University of Maryland

Why did you choose Duquesne Kline School of Law? I chose Duquesne Kline because of the amazing scholarship opportunities. Additionally, the high bar passage rate was important to my decision because I want to be successful inside and outside of law school.

What is your favorite law school class and who is your favorite professor??

My favorite law school class was Civil Procedure and Dr. Heppner is my favorite teacher.

What work experiences have you had?

I am a Law Clerk for J.P. Ward & Associates and a Research Assistant for Professor Ledewitz.

What student organizations or publications are you involved in?

Law Review, Moot Court, Lambda, National Lawyer's Guild, Student Ambassador.

Meet Denzel Gregg

What is your favorite law school class and who is your favorite professor? My favorite law school class so far has been Legal Research and Writing with Professor Julia Glencer. Although the course was tough, we all knew how much she cared about our personal and professional growth. It was also the class I found most applicable to my summer internship. A close second place pick would be Contracts with Professor Richard Gaffney.

Undergraduate Institution: St. Bonaventure University

What do I need to know about the law before I start law school?

Absolutely nothing! I had no legal experience prior to school and have been doing great. Everything you need to know will be taught upon arrival. Enjoy the last few months before law school and don't panic about your current level of legal expertise.

What are some of your interests outside of law school?

I love sports which has made it great to be in Pittsburgh. There's a professional sports team for every season and a bunch of collegiate sports programs in town as well.

What work experiences have you had?

Immediately following undergrad, I played basketball professionally in Europe for three years. After COVID, I moved on to work for Indianapolis-Marion County Mayor Joe Hogsett in Indianapolis, Indiana. Finally, in my year before law school I worked as an Assistant Academic Coordinator for Syracuse University Football. None of these things have anything to do with law school but here I am!

Meet M.K. Swartsfager

What work experiences have you had? I've worked for nearly 10 years on Active Duty in the U.S. Military, spent two years supporting Assistant U.S. Attorneys in the Northern District of California and Western District of Pennsylvania, and provided assistance to the people of Allegheny County on Landlord Tenant and Protection from Abuse cases with Neighborhood Legal Services.

Undergraduate Institution: Colorado College

Why did you choose Duquesne Kline Law?

I chose Duquesne Kline because of its legacy of commitment to public service. This is an institution that remembers and honors its community. It was founded as a humble night school over 100 years ago. Its objective has always been to prepare bright Pittsburghers from disadvantaged and underrepresented communities for law careers that would disrupt the status quo. While Duquesne Kline now serves students who come to Pittsburgh from all over the world, that essential mission has not changed. The motto is, "the Welfare of the People is the Highest Law". It's more than just a slogan.

Which law student organizations are you a part of?

I'm Vice President of the Public Interest Law Association (PILA) and I work in the Urban Development Practicum. I'm also an active member in quite a few student groups, most notably the Environmental Law Society. Last year, I co-founded a student organization called Trails Club, which holds weekly trail walks/runs and regular outdoor events in order to build a student body and a legal community grounded in awareness of the natural world and committed to seeing the humanity in one another.

Meet Allyssa Rispoli

What advice would you give to incoming law students? Time management is your best friend in law school. The workload is manageable, and it's definitely possible to have a job and/or a social life along with it. Law school does not need to be your entire life!

Undergraduate Institution: Virginia Tech

Why did you choose Duquesne Kline School of Law? First of all, I love Pittsburgh. Second of all, it really appealed to me how personable and welcoming the staff and current students were. Navigating the admissions process can be daunting, but everybody at Duquesne Kline made me feel welcome before I had even committed to going here. And lastly (maybe the most important reason), Duquesne Kline Law has an incredible reputation not only around the Pittsburgh area, but around Pennsylvania and surrounding states. Practicing attorneys are always impressed when you tell them you go to Duquesne Kline Law! Not to mention, the bar passage rate is incredibly high!

What are your practice-area interests?

I am interested in family law, mostly divorces, custody, and support, but I am also looking into international law and immigration law!

What work experiences have you had?

This summer, following my 1L year, I worked for a family attorney, and I continued to work for her through the fall semester. She is a solo practitioner, so I have been working very closely with her on cases. My day-to-day tasks include things like: legal research, writing court pleadings, talking with clients, and trial prep.

“Lawyers on Location” is an innovative program that brings students and legal professionals together during the school year. Students are invited to visit local employers for an informal lunch and networking meeting followed by a tour of the employer’s office. The program allows students to meet alumni, develop networking skills, and learn from our grads.

Meet Taylor Maldonado

Why did you choose Duquesne Kline? I chose Thomas R. Kline School of Law of Duquesne University as a first-generation college graduate from a family with no background or connection in law because Duquesne Kline Law offers a great alumni network in the heart of our city! I also chose Duquesne Kline Law as the city’s only law school to offer the flexibility of an evening program that allows me to work full-time in the industry while also pursuing my degree.

Undergraduate Institution: Saint Vincent College

What advice would you give to incoming students? The best advice I can give to incoming law students is to embrace the experience (and the challenge) and to ask questions! There may be moments of uncertainty, and at first law school will feel like nothing you have experienced before, but by the end of it all, you will wish you had more time here - especially to get insight and guidance from the wonderful faculty and staff - so try not to focus solely on the exam at the end!

What work experiences have you had?

I began law school employed full-time as a Business Immigration Supervisor with Fragomen, Del Rey, Bernsen & Loewy, LLP. During my third year of law school, I spent the spring semester interning at the District Attorney’s Office in Allegheny County for the PCRA/Federal Habeas Unit and spent the Summer interning at the Pennsylvania Supreme Court in Justice Wecht’s chambers. I have since returned to Immigration and am working full-time for Ogletree Deakins as a Legal Writer, supporting their Washington, DC office.

What led you to pursue a joint degree? I chose to pursue the dual J.D./MBA program not only to make myself more marketable to future employers in the corporate industry but also to gain a more holistic understanding of how businesses operate.

What are your practice-area interests? As of now, I am most interested in Immigration Law. I have an ever-growing interest in travel and global mobility, and I thoroughly enjoy my current position in immigration. However, if law school has taught me anything, it is that the law, no matter the practice-area, is fascinating; it takes time to find your niche, and you don’t always end up in the field you would expect!

What are some of your interests outside of law school? When I’m not busy working or preparing for class, I enjoy taking my puppy for walks at the park, reading and writing leisurely, and volunteering at the school (for example, I participated in the Name Change Project, and it was a wonderful experience).

Meet Brian O'Loughlin

What might people be surprised to know about you?

I entered law school as a non-traditional student. I am a U.S. military service-connected, disabled veteran, who also worked in the civilian sector in healthcare and first responder roles. I have four young children (two girls and two boys) and two dogs. This non-traditional background and life experience has proven invaluable throughout law school.

Undergraduate Institution: Adelphi University

What advice would you give to incoming law students?

Law school can feel like an overwhelming experience at first. It is very doable, even for those with young children. It is a matter of learning how to break this material into bite sized chunks.

Your professors are experts on the topics they are teaching. Do not hesitate to go to office hours and clarify your questions. These one-on-one meetings will clarify the issue and you may get exposure to other specializations and current research within the legal profession that you were otherwise unaware of.

Why did you choose Duquesne Kline School of Law?

During the application process I contacted the admissions office with two questions, one about how the Post 9/11 GI Bill and Yellow Ribbon program were implemented and another about a specific legal clinic that I was interested in. I received a comprehensive answer regarding veterans benefits almost immediately and was also provided with detailed information on other veteran support services available on campus. In addition, I received a phone call from the professor who instructs the legal clinic and he spent nearly an hour discussing the clinic and the overall program and culture of Duquesne Kline Law. This level of personalized service has continued throughout the program, with professors, administrators, and support staff getting to know and support students throughout their educational journey.

Trial Advocacy Program

Duquesne Kline School of Law offers a nationally recognized Trial Advocacy Program to upper-level students. Through comprehensive coursework and competition experience, students participate to develop skills in case analysis, trial preparation, effective communication, witness preparation, and case presentation.

Appellate Moot Court Board

duq.edu/law/appellateadvocacy

Students participate in the Appellate Advocacy Program to develop new legal research, writing, and advocacy skills and to compete in appellate moot court, arbitration, and negotiation competitions across the country. The student-run Appellate Moot Court Board directs the program under the supervision of adjunct faculty and alumni coaches.

Student Ambassadors

The Student Ambassador Program promotes Duquesne Kline School of Law and supports Office of Admissions events throughout the academic year. Ambassadors assist with information sessions, admitted student events, and tours. Students interested in becoming Ambassadors should contact the Office of Admissions at lawadmissions@duq.edu.

Student Publications

The Duquesne Kline School of Law Review is the flagship journal of Duquesne Kline School of Law. The scholarly journal is entirely student-run and publishes works by legal professionals and academics twice a year. Membership can be obtained by participating in the annual write-on competition upon completion of the first year of full-time studies or second year of part-time studies. Membership is awarded based upon students' class ranking and performance in the write-on competition.

The Duquesne Kline School of Law Journal focuses on topics that affect the world of business, evolving Supreme Court case law, and influential persons in the business community. Students, faculty, alumni, and practicing attorneys submit articles for consideration on issues involving securities, contracts, and international business.

Joule: Duquesne Energy and Environmental Law Journal serves as a forum for students and professionals to discuss legal concepts related to energy and environmental law. Joule features a collection of commentaries and blogs as well as full-length articles offering in-depth analysis.

Juris publishes articles on substantive areas of the law and issues of local and national interest. Students strengthen their writing, editing, and production skills by working on the magazine and blog.

Meet Chelsea Bruce

What advice would you give to incoming law students? It is great to have an idea of what area of law you would like to practice, but do not let it limit you. Keep an open mind. Get a taste of as many types of law as you can while you can. A couple years into practice, it'll be harder to make that switch, so sample while the stakes are low—take advantage of classes with adjunct professors who are currently practicing law, ask full-time faculty why they left the firm lifestyle, and go to the events with professionals.

Undergraduate Institution: University of Delaware

Why did you choose Duquesne Kline School of Law?

There is a large and thriving legal community in Pittsburgh, and Duquesne Kline has strong connections with many of the firms in the area, making it easy for its students to find mentors willing to help them. Further, the culture within the law school is unique—there isn't a sense of unhealthy competition, people are genuinely interested in helping one another, and the faculty are interested in the students' growth.

Which law student organizations or publications are you a part of?

I am the President of the Intellectual Property student organization. I am also a member of the Black Law Students Association, Women's Law Association, and the Sports & Entertainment Law Society.

Student Health Insurance Plan

📍 duq.edu/SHIP

Duquesne University is concerned about the health and well-being of our students and understands the importance of acquiring adequate health insurance. Therefore, the University has a Hard Waiver Policy for student health insurance.

All full-time graduate, undergraduate, and international students are required to log-in to the student health insurance portal to either select medical insurance or provide verifiable proof of coverage. If you do not log-in to provide the required information, you will automatically be enrolled in the basic Student Health Insurance plan and your student account will be billed for the cost in two installments. The University partners with QM Services to provide excellent and affordable health insurance.

If you are covered by another insurance policy, you must first have the policy reviewed by the healthcare advocates at QM Services to determine if it is acceptable for the waiver.

To enroll or waive insurance coverage, log-in to QM Services after you are registered for classes. The Duquesne Kline School of Law Registrar will notify you when you have been officially registered for classes.

Meet Jamie Martines

What advice would you give to incoming law students?

Run your own race. It's easy to get caught up in what everyone else is doing – where they are applying for internships, how they did on exams – and to start comparing yourself to them. Do your best to stay focused on your goals, and to keep improving against your own personal best.

Undergraduate Institution: Georgetown University School of Foreign Service

Why did you choose Duquesne Kline Law? As a non-traditional student who worked for about a decade between undergrad and starting law school, I was looking for a school that knew how to support a student like me. Even as I went back to school, the professors and deans helped me find ways to keep my professional contacts fresh and move my career forward.

Which law student organizations or publications are you a part of? I am a co-founder and the president of the Trails Club, a student group that supports students' mental health and promotes networking among students, faculty, and alumni by organizing weekly group runs/walks, as well as monthly hikes and other outdoor outings. I'm also a member of the Duquesne Kline School of Law Review and a teaching assistant in the Legal Research and Writing program.

What work experiences have you had? Prior to law school, I worked as a reporter covering local and state government in Pennsylvania for about seven years. I currently work as a law clerk with a firm in Pittsburgh focused on commercial litigation. I have also volunteered with the Name Change Project.

Meet Sam Baycer

What advice would you give to incoming students?

If your class has a teaching assistant, meet with them. Professors generally select teaching assistants from students who did very well in their class. Oftentimes, a teaching assistant can help you understand a confusing part of the law or give you advice on how to succeed in the professor's class.

Undergraduate Institution: American University of Washington, D.C.

Why did you choose Duquesne Kline School of Law?

I chose Duquesne Kline Law based on the flexibility of the JD/MBA program and the strong alumni association the school has. The alumni and school pride had a direct impact on work opportunities during the summer following my 1L year.

What work experiences have you had? Prior to law school, I worked in several marketing and advertising internships in D.C.. Over winter break and the summer following my 1L year, I worked as a legal intern at TriState Capital Bank, a large bank based in Pittsburgh. The experience that I gained there furthered my knowledge of contract law, corporate law, and bankruptcy law. Following my 2L year, I was a Summer Associate at Buchanan Ingersoll & Rooney, where I worked on litigation and transactional tasks. At Buchanan, I applied what I had learned in lectures and my legal research class to real scenarios and strengthened my research and writing skills.

What is your favorite law school class? My favorite class was Secured Transactions. Personally, I really enjoyed learning about the systematic process of creating an interest in a piece of collateral, and how disputes are settled when two parties have competing interests.
