Day for Learning and Speaking Out Against Racial Injustice

Rising and Thriving: Healthy Anti-Racist Activism

All sessions via Zoom: Advance Registration Required | Info & Registration: duq.edu/DLSO
March 23-25, 2021

Tuesday March 23

10:00 AM: Who Cares for the Activist? Tending to our Collective Wounds
Facilitated by Amal Kouttab, Quincy Stephenson, & Matt Walsh from DU Counseling Services

4:30 PM: Black Lives Matter: A Moral Account of Anti-Racist Activism
Keynote address by Rev. Dr. Eboni Marshall Turman, Assistant Professor of Theology and African American Religion, Yale University Divinity School
Welcoming remarks by Dr. Kristine Blair, Dean, McAnulty College & Graduate School of Liberal Arts
Introduction by Dr. Kathy Glass, DLSO Co-Chair, Department of English
Q&A moderated by Dr. Anthony Kane, Jr. Director of the Office of Diversity and Inclusion

Wednesday March 24

12:15 PM: “I’m Not Racist But...”: The Rhetoric of Harmful Language and Navigating Uncomfortable Conversations
Panelists: Diana Forry, Caitlyn Hunter, and Chris Maverick

4:30 PM: Asian-Americans and Race in the 21st Century: Challenges and Hopes
Facilitated by Cassie diBenedetti, winner of the inaugural Community Engaged Teaching and Research Racial Equity Grant, with student panelists Jessica Cetorelli, Carmela Gorres, and Emmala Le

6:00 PM: Juvenile Justice in Context Film Screening and Panel Discussion
Facilitated by Dr. Eva Simms, Department of Psychology, with panelists Christian Nowlin, Rick Bigelow, and Luke Goodwin from Placelab Justice, and Yusef Jonas and Jamar Williams from Elsinore Bennu Think Tank

9:00 PM: Sacred Conversations on Race
A workshop for undergraduate students, facilitated by Luci-Jo DiMaggio, Spiritan Campus Ministry

Thursday March 25

12:15-1:30 PM: Race and Pedagogy: A Discussion of Readings
Facilitated by Erin Rentschler, Center for Teaching Excellence
Please see the CTE website for details on the readings and to register

A Day for Learning and Speaking Out is an annual event for the entire Duquesne University community. The Keynote address is also open to the public. For further details and to register, please visit duq.edu/DLSO.

The DLSO is grateful to its financial and in-kind sponsors for 2021: The Critical Race Theory Speaker Series of the McAnulty College and Graduate School of Liberal Arts, the departments of Theology, English, Psychology, and Sociology, the Center for Teaching Excellence, the Elsinore Bennu Think Tank for Restorative Justice, the Center for Student Wellbeing, the Office of Diversity and Inclusion, and Spiritan Campus Ministry.