Welcome Address
Dr. Jeffrey McCurry, Director, Simon Silverman Phenomenology Center

Dedication Lecture: By Any Means Necessary? Contemporary Antifa and Nonviolent Antifascism
Dr. Catriona Hanley, Loyola University Maryland

Remarks
Dr. Adriaan Peperzak, Professor Emeritus, Loyola University Chicago

Adriaan T. Peperzak is a Dutch philosopher and educator, who achieved a PhD in Humanities at the University of Paris (Sorbonne), with his doctoral dissertation Le jeune Hegel et la vision morale du monde, directed by Paul Ricoeur, published in 1960. He has taught in many universities in many places, including The Netherlands, Spain, Italy, France, Indonesia, and the United States. In the US, he has taught at Duquesne University, Pennsylvania State University, Boston College, Loyola University Chicago, Villanova University, and Stanford University. His research has focused on Hegel and Emmanuel Levinas, although he has also published on Plato, Aristotle, Bonaventura, Descartes, Heidegger, and Ricoeur, thematically focusing on questions in ethics, social and political philosophy, metaphilosophy, and the philosophy of religion.